Pleasantville Baptist Church

Jan 16 1869 At a meeting held at Pleasantville School it was unanimously resolved that a house of worship in this section is

Pleasantville was originally an "outstation" of the Bridgewater Baptist Church

Jan 16, 1869	At a meeting held at Pleasantville School: "It was unanimously resolved that a house of worship in this section is absolutely indispensable. " --building committee established: Deacon Alexander Corkum, Elias Corkum, and J.W. Falt
	--at a subsequent meeting (date unknown) – meetinghouse site was chosen and Trustees named: Deacon Alexander Corkum, Jacob Corkum, and Deacon Benjamin Sarty
Nov 25, 1872	--Building Committee reports "that the meeting house is now ready for opening ; and we wish to hand it over to the Trustees of the House, for the church to sell the pews, and pay the building committee."
Nov 27, 1872	Pews (a family's seating in the church) were sold --48 pews were sold in total, with 2 designated as a "free seat" --pew purchase prices ranged from $59 to $20 --total cost of building meeting house: $1338.59 --total raised from selling of the pews: $1433.00
Dec 15, 1872	Pleasantville Meeting House opened for services --10 ½ o'clock service: Rev. Stephen March of Bridgewater, on Isaiah 56:7 --2 ½ o'clock service: Rev. William E. Hall, on 1 Chronicles 29:5 --also held a 7 pm service
	" Services were held with almost uninterrupted regularity, every other Sabbath, or twice a month..." --congregation grew, saw many saved and become members --regular monthly conferences also held, usually on the Saturday before second service of the month, which were a combination of bible message/service, followed by a business meeting (if anything urgent needed to be dealt with)
October 1874	--Rev. Stephen March ends his pastorate --Rev. John Williams and Rev. A.J. Cogswell become joint Pastors of Bridgewater Church and its "outstations"
-----, 1875	"By mutual consent of the Bridgewater Church and Pleasantville section, after due deliberation by a competent council called for that purpose, the latter was organized into a separate church to be known and distinguished as "The Pleasantville Baptist Church..."
Spring 1876	The church negotiates with Rev. F.D. Crawley of Acadia College to minister at the church for a few months after the school closes in June. This arrangement worked out so well, that it was decided to ordain him as their minister
Sept 22, 1876	Ordination of Rev. Frederick D. Crowley

October 20, 1876	--"...resolved that we secure the labour of Rev. F.D. Crawley for the next six months."
October 28, 1876	At a meeting of the pewholders, it was agreed to transfer remaining funds left over after roof repairs towards the building of a parsonage
June 1877	Rev. Crawley resigns after accepting "a call to labor with the church at Sydney, C.B."
1877-1886	((Pastor(s) name unknown at present))
September 1887	S. March was pastor at this time, at least since September 1886 (perhaps longer)

History of Brookfield Baptist Church

In 1867 Samuel and Ceretha Smith sold a piece of Land explicitly for the purpose of building and maintaining a building whereby worship services could be held and the Board of Trustees would be responsible for the structure of said building. Although this was deeded to a denomination known as the Wesleyan Methodists, ministers of other recognized faiths could also hold services there. Reportedly, work on the foundation commenced at once and the building was put up and the roof shingled before winter set in. delays appear to have been encountered, but Richard Hunt is credited with the pushing the project to completion.

The Church was officially opened 6 October 1872 with three services: Rev. E. B. Moore preached the morning service; Rev. S. Sykes the afternoon service and Rev. W. Jones of Liverpool the evening service. On the following day the pews were sold; the sum of $1650 was realized with the proceeds from a tea and sale by the woman, the whole of the debt incurred was paid.

1887. this may have been when the balcony was removed, and the roof rebuilt at a steeper pitch. (The original rafters are still there). The Harlow diary tells:

June 14 1887- Rufus Carder is at work on the meeting House putting on the tower

June 15- a lot of people on the Church today shingling.

July 15- A crowd of people are today tearing out the inside of the Meeting House.

Aug 5- McPherson assessing pews today for the Church repairs.

Oct 2- Our Church was rededicated today after being repaired this past summer. First service today.

Feb 28, 1888 Had meeting today to sell pews.

June 1, 1890- They have just put up four nice chandeliers in the Church.

Nov 21, 1910- There was a presentation service for the bell

One account says that the families living on the Old Annapolis Road formed a sewing circle and raised money for the Church bell. Since that time a furnace room has been added at the back of the building, and minor rearrangements made inside, but the basic structure remains the same. In fact, on a cold winter morning, one can still perceive the large high ceiling-ed sanctuary as a barn-like edifice.

The Orange Hall

The present hall was built at Brookfield Mines by the Orange Lodge- a fraternal organization somewhat similar to the Masons. It was totally Protestant, and strongly against intoxicating beverages. For these reasons when the hall was moved to north Brookfield it had to become church property and remain so.

History of the Mahone Bay United Baptist Churches

On June 2nd of 1907 following the Sunday service 152 members who comprised the Mahone Bay Church requested their letters of dismission in order to form the Mahone Bay United Baptist Church. The baptist began holding regular services in Mahone Bay as early as 1833 when they used the Union Meeting House which had been built as a cooperative undertaking by the Methodist, Presbyterians, Lutherans, and Baptist. When the building became too small, services were held in a hall owned by Joseph Hamm located on the South Main Street.

The existing Church building was erected in 1874-1875 and was dedicated on March 14, 1875. Rev. E. M. Saunders, one of the better known historians of the denominations, preached the dedication sermon.

In 1911, during the pastorate of Rev. B. D. Knott, the present Church Hall was added to provide facilities for the Sunday School which was organized in 1860.

In 1975 the Church celebrated the 100th Anniversary of the building of the Church.
